Objectives of the Seminar

1. To familiarize faculty and students with the fundamental concepts, types, and scope of Intellectual Property Rights (IPR).
2. To foster awareness about the importance of protecting intellectual creations, academic output, and innovative ideas.
3. To motivate the academic community to recognize, document, and safeguard their original work through proper IPR procedures
4. To introduce participants to the legal frameworks, policies, and institutional mechanisms related to patents, copyrights, trademarks, and other forms of intellectual property.
5. To encourage faculty and students to develop a culture of creativity, innovation, and responsible ownership of intellectual products.
6. To provide practical guidance on filing, documentation, and ethical use of intellectual property in academic and research environments.

Expected Outcomes of the Seminar

1. Participants will gain a clear understanding of the basic concepts, categories, and significance of Intellectual Property Rights (IPR).
2. Faculty and students will be better informed about the processes involved in protecting intellectual creations through patents, copyrights, trademarks, and other IPR tools.
3. The seminar will inspire participants to recognize the value of their academic and creative work and take steps to safeguard it.
4. Participants will develop a stronger sense of academic integrity, responsible authorship, and ethical use of intellectual materials.
5. Attendees will understand the legal frameworks, documentation procedures, and institutional support systems related to IPR.
6. The seminar will foster a culture of innovation by encouraging individuals to generate original ideas and transform them into protected intellectual products.
7. Participants will become better prepared to apply for copyrights, patents, and other IPR protections as required in their academic or professional work.
8. The institution will benefit from increased intellectual contributions, improved research outputs, and a more informed academic community.

Target Audience

This seminar is designed for a wide range of academic audience, including:

Undergraduate students of colleges and universities

Postgraduate students across disciplines

Research scholars engaged in academic and scientific research

Faculty members from various departments

Anyone interested in understanding and safeguarding intellectual creations

The programme aims to create a knowledgeable community across all levels of higher education by offering foundational as well as practical insights into Intellectual Property Rights.

About the Institution

The village Chaipat has a glory in itself. It is blessed with the indomitable spirit of its people and the zeal of freedom fighters who sacrificed their lives to ensure the freedom of India. The village is situated at the confluence of four enriched districts of West Bengal, those are Howrah, Hooghly, Purba Medinipur and Paschim Medinipur. The college is named after Saheed Pradyot Bhattacharya, who welcomed death with a smiling for freeing India from the clutch of the British Empire. However, its vast geographical terrain made it difficult for the administration to set up institutions for higher education in Daspur-II Block. The scenario changed when the well-planned directions of the Panchayat Samity, the Education department of the Govt. of West Bengal, and enthusiastic support of the local community worked together to establish Chaipat Saheed Pradyot Bhattacharya Mahavidyalaya. The long-cherished dream came true on 26th July in 2007. The Mahavidyalaya received its affiliation from Vidyasagar University and since then has been authorised to offer under graduate courses on Arts based subjects like Bengali, English, Sanskrit, History, Political Science and Sociology. The college has applied for 2(f) & 12(B) status from the University Grants Commission. The College is now running with the heartiest and cordial co-operation of the people university authority UGC and Govt. of West Bengal.

About the Seminar

The proposed seminar on Intellectual Property Rights aims to arm faculty members and students with fundamental knowledge about the shielding of intellectual outputs in the professional and research environment. In today's rapidly evolving educational landscape, understanding IPR has become vital for safeguarding original ideas, research findings, creative works, and innovative projects. This seminar seeks to familiarize and foster awareness regarding various forms of intellectual property, including copyrights, patents, trademarks, and designs, while highlighting their significance in personal, institutional, and societal growth.

Through expert-led discussions, and interactive sessions, the seminar will encourage participants to recognize the value of their intellectual output and to embrace responsible, ethical, and legally informed practices. It aims to create a culture of creativity, innovation, and protection within the academic community, ensuring that every intellectual contribution is given its due recognition.
